M'LAUGHLIN DISCHARGES SEVEN INDICTED OFFICERS

SECOND DEGREE MURDER CHARGED IN JAIL DEATH

CHIEF WAKELIN VINDI-
CATED, BUT NOT REINSTATED.

ALL FREE UNDER BOND

Grand Jury Condemns "So-Called Third Degree
Methods" — Two Captains, Two Detectives,
Three Patrolmen Accused

A Garland County Grand jury strongly condemning "so - called third degree methods," late yesterday indicted seven members of the Hot Springs Police department on second degree murder charges as the climax of an investigation into the death of John Dickson, 32, city jail prisoner.

Those indicted were Captain L. A. (Arch) Cooper, Captain R. L. (Bob) Moore, Lieutenant Cecil Brock, Detective Glynn Buchanan, Patrolman Press Griffin, Patrolman Joe Scott and Patrolman Andy Irwin.

Within a few hours after the grand jury reported at 5:35 p.m. the seven indicted officers had surrendered to Sheriff Marion Anderson and were released under bond. Circuit Judge Earl Witt set bond at $1,500 each.

The grand jury vindicated Chief of Police Joe Wakelin, who with Cooper, Brock and Buchanan, had been suspended by Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin pending outcome of the inquiry, of actual participation in the alleged assault on Dickson, but strongly criticized him for failure to exercise control over his men.

BUREAU

Following the grand jury report, Mayor McLaughlin issued a statement, declaring "the seven officers who have been indicted are permanently discharged," and adding "It is doubtful at this time whether or not Joe Wakelin will again serve as chief of police."

None of the indicted officers made a statement. Ill at his home, Wakelin also declined to comment.

A blanket indictment charged that the accused "on December 14, 1936, unlawfully, willfully and with malice aforethought, did assault and murder one John Dickson by striking, kicking and beating him, the said John Dickson, on the back and other parts of the body, with a blunt instrument, the particular description of which is to the grand jury unknown, from the effects of such striking, kicking and beating the said John Dickson died on Dec. 24, 1936."

Dickson died Christmas Eve in a hospital from what the death certificate said was pneumonia. Subsequently his father, James Dickson, charged his son died of mistreatment while in custody and asked a full investigation. He retained Scott Wood, former circuit judge, and C. Floyd Huff as attorneys to press the demands.

Dickson had been arrested on charges of robbery and participating in an attack upon Chief Wakelin last fall while Wakelin and other officers were seeking Dickson and other members of an alleged robbery gang in the wilds of Perry county.

Dickson was removed to the hospital from the city jail four days before his death. He had been arrested two weeks earlier near Hope, Hempstead county.

An autopsy performed on Dickson's body by Hot Springs physicians revealed that the prisoner had suffered several broken ribs, an injured kidney and other serious injuries. The autopsy report declared the injuries "certainly contributed" to Dickson's death, but added that it could not be stated whether Dickson would have recovered from pneumonia, had he not been injured.

The Grand Jury's signed report, presented by Foreman Charles G. Lee, said the body had been examined by witnesses and "endeavored to develop every particle of evidence that would have any bearing on the death."

Grand jury witnesses included doctors who conducted or witnessed the autopsy, nurses at the hospital where Dickson died, newspaper reporters, policemen, prisoners in the city jail and city officials. The grand jury had devoted three days to the investigation.

In its report to Judge Witt the grand jury expressed appreciation to Mayor McLaughlin, Judge

Witt and other officials for their co-operation in the investigation.

Lieut. Weldon Rasberry of the Hot Springs fire department, has been acting chief of police since the suspension last Saturday of Chief Wakelin. In his statement last night, Mayor McLaughlin said he was pleased with Rasberry's leadership and planned no immediate change.

Mayor McLaughlin's statement follows:

"As I previously stated, my policy has always been since I have been mayor of this city that a person in custody of officers should not be mistreated, so in order to carry out this policy I desire to state that the seven officers who have been indicted are permanently discharged, and will not again be connected with the city administration."

"It is doubtful at this time whether or not Joe Wakelin will again serve as chief of police."

"The police department is now under command of Weldon Rasberry. I am highly pleased with his leadership, and I do not intend a change at this time."

At the time Mayor McLaughlin suspended Wakelin and the three other officers, he said:

"My policy has always been that a man in custody should not be mistreated, and the city administration is desirous of having complete and fair investigation of the Dickson case."

It came again, and like a flash he knew that the sound came from the other side of the organ. Very quietly he crept to the curtain, his former training standing him in good stead. He was unarmed, but that did not cause him a moment's pause.

He stood in the organ loft, and below him was the chapel, in pitch darkness. For a moment he imagined that his ears had tricked him, or that some mouse had made the noise. Then it came again close to him, and he put out his hands to the edge of the embrasure, and nearly cried out. Two projections met his fingers, knobs of leather that moved, and in a moment he understood their dread meaning—they were the ends of a ladder placed against the organ loft, and someone was climbing the ladder. He seized the end and, exerting all his strength, hurled them back into the chapel. There was a crash, and a yell from below, and then the darkness split with a red flash, and a bullet sang past him and smashed into the organ. He heard a cry from Sylvia, and then a sound he had heard before, and which was stamped deeply into his mind—the metallic clang of the brass plate that covered the crypt falling into its place.

Sylvia stood beside him, her trembling hands holding him tightly.

"Are you hurt?" she cried in an agony of terror.

"No, he missed me. But the

Prior to the investigation, members of the police department had denied the mistreatment charges. They contended Dickson was in a weakened physical condition when taken in custody as the result of sleeping out-of-doors while he was a fugitive.

The text of the grand jury's report to Judge Witt follows:
To Honorable Earl Witt, Circuit Judge:

We have been in session three days investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of one John Dickson. We have heard 38 witnesses, and have endeavored to develop every particle of evidence that would have any bearing upon the death of John Dickson, a prisoner in the city jail recently. We have called upon every person who might have any testimony or who might know of any one who might have some information that would tend to throw light on the investigation.

We have returned true bills in cases of seven defendants whom we believe under the testimony developed during our investigation should face trial in connection with the death of Dickson.

During our investigation we found no evidence to connect Chief of Police Joe Wakelin with the actual mistreatment of any prisoner, but the evidence revealed by our investigation leads us to believe that should Chief Wakelin have exercised a more dominant control over the officers under him such circumstances as those revealed in the Dickson case and other cases of alleged mistreatment of prisoners, would not have existed.

We, the members of the grand jury, strongly condemn any type of brutal, so-called "third degree" methods used upon prisoners. Such practices tend to destroy the credibility of the evidence of officers in criminal trials, aside from being inhuman and which no civilized community should tolerate.

We deeply appreciate the helpful co-operation of the mayor, the sheriff's office, the municipal judge and the circuit judge in our investigation of the Dickson case.

INDICTED POLICEMEN MAY ASK EARLY TRIALS

ACTION BEFORE MARCH COURT TERM POSSIBLE

Seven Face Charges of Second Degree Murder

ALL DISCHARGED

Mayor Will Not Fill
All Vacancies at Present

Seven former members of the Hot Springs Police Department today awaited trial on charges of second degree murder as the result of a blanket indictment returned against them late yesterday by the Garland County Grand Jury at the conclusion of an investigation into the alleged "third degree" death of John Dickson, 32, city jail prisoner.

Announcement by Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin that the seven indicted men—Captain L. A. (Arch) Cooper, Captain R. L. (Bob) Moore, Lieut. Cecil Brock, Detective Glynn Buchanan, Patrolman Andy Irwin, Patrolman Joe Scott and Patrolman Press Griffin—are permanently discharged and will not again be connected with the city administration, following closely on the heels of the Grand Jury action.

Early trials for the accused men seemed a probability today. Although none made a statement, some are said to privately expressed desire for quick disposition of the cases, fearing that the charges hanging over them would prevent them from obtaining other employment. Virtually all have families and own their own homes.

...under 1934 are said to have been taken into consideration when Circuit Judge Earl Witt and Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Curtis Ridgeway agreed that $1,500 bond in each case would suffice. All of the officers surrendered to Sheriff Marion Anderson and Chief Deputy Roy Erney within a few hours after the grand jury action, and made bond.

Judge Witt indicated today that the men would be granted early trials if such were their wish.

"We usually have a setting of the docket during the second week of February before the beginning of the March term," he said. "If the interested parties want trials earlier than that time, or later, I would consider the request in either instance."

The future status of Chief of Police Wakelin, suspended last Saturday along with Cooper, Brock and Buchanan, but vindicated by the Grand Jury, was left in doubt by Mayor McLaughlin's statement issued following the Grand Jury report. The mayor said it was "doubtful" if Wakelin "will again serve as chief of police."

Although exonerating Wakelin of any participation in the alleged assault on Dickson, the Grand Jury took the suspended chief to task for failing to exercise more "dominant control" over his men.

Wakelin was non-committal. The suspended chief has never fully recovered from the beating he suffered last fall when abducted during a raid in Perry county, allegedly by John Dickson, the latter's cousin, Alfred ("Pug") Dickson and other members of a gang which Wakelin and a posse were seeking in connection with a series of robberies here.

The inquisitorial body strongly denounced "third degree methods."

Only three men have been added to the police department to replace the eight, including Chief Wakelin, relieved from duty. The department is under command of Lieut. Weldon Rasberry of the Hot Springs Fire Department, named acting chief by Mayor McLaughlin at the time of his suspension order. Mayor McLaughlin said he was pleased with Rasberry's leadership and planned no immediate change.

Jerry Watkins and Monroe Young, former members of the department, were restored to duty, the former as day captain to succeed Cooper. Patrolman Ben Rogers succeeded Moore as night captain. Mayor McLaughlin said that for the sake of economy no others would be added to the department at this time.

The recent Quorum Court cut $500 off the appropriation for the city health department," Mayor McLaughlin said. "This will of necessity have to be made up out of our own funds and we will have to economize somewhere. I believe the police department can get along with the present number of men."

The Grand Jury indictment charged that the seven accused men "on Dec. 14, 1936, unlawfully, willfully and with malice aforethought, did assault and murder one John Dickson by striking, kicking and beating him, the said John Dickson, on the back and other parts of the body, with a blunt instrument, the particular description of which is to the Grand Jury unknown, from the effects of such striking, kicking and beating, the said John Dickson died on Dec. 24, 1936."

The Grand Jury had been in session three days and a report submitted to Judge Witt by Foreman Charles Goslee said the body had examined 38 witnesses in the Dickson case and had sought every possible particle of evidence.

Dickson's death occurred on Christmas Eve in a local hospital to which he had been removed four days earlier from the city jail. He had been arrested less than two weeks before in Hempstead county. Dickson's death certificate gave pneumonia as the cause, but the prisoner's father, James Dickson, charged that mistreatment at the hands of city officers had caused his son's death and he retained the services of two attorneys, Scott Wood, former circuit judge, and C. Floyd Huff, to press an investigation.

An autopsy by Drs. J. S. Stell and Euclid Smith revealed that Dickson had suffered numerous injuries, including several broken ribs, and an injured kidney which, their report said, "certainly contributed" to the man's death, although the doctors said it was impossible to determine whether Dickson would have recovered from pneumonia if he had not been injured.

Authorities denied Dickson had been mistreated. They said he was in a weakened physical condition when arrested as the result of repeatedly sleeping out-of-doors.

Judge Witt called for a Grand Jury investigation and Mayor McLaughlin last Saturday suspended Chief Wakelin and three other officers pending outcome of the probe. At the same time the mayor called for a "full and fair" investigation.

A three-day parade of doctors, nurses, newspaper reporters, city policemen and other officials before the Grand Jury followed with the dramatic climax occurring at 8:34 p.m. yesterday when the inquisitorial body revealed that it had not only indicted three of the suspended officers but four others as well.

In its report, the Grand Jury expressed appreciation to Mayor McLaughlin, Judge Witt, Sheriff Anderson, Municipal Judge V. S. Ledgerwood and other officials for their co-operation in the investigation.

When notified that seven members of the police department had been indicted, Mayor McLaughlin issued the following statement:

"As I previously stated, my policy has always been since I have been mayor of this city that a person in custody of officers should not be mistreated, so in order to carry out this policy I desire to state that the seven officers who have been indicted are permanently discharged, and will not again be connected with the city administration.

"It is doubtful at this time whether or not Joe Wakelin will again serve as chief of police.

"The police department is now under command of Weldon Rasberry. I am highly pleased with his leadership, and I do not intend a change at this time."

Wakelin had been chief of police for almost 10 years, succeeding William Brandenburg, when Mayor McLaughlin took over the city administration in April, 1927. Charges of "third degree" methods by the police department under previous administrations comprised one of the chief points of Mayor McLaughlin in his first campaign for the mayoralty.

Cooper had been with the department eight years, Brock, seven; Buchanan, one; Moore, three; Scott, 12; Griffin, eight and Irwin, three.

Intense interest in the grand jury investigation had been manifested throughout the city during the past three days. The grand jury action hit like a thunderbolt and newspaper extras were lapped up eagerly by newspaper readers.

One or two of indicted officers were at the Courthouse when the Grand Jury reported. They gave themselves up as soon as Circuit Clerk John E. Jones issued bench warrants. The others came in and surrendered as soon as they were notified by telephone.

One of the men said he at first believed some one was joking when he was informed he had been indicted.

Detective Buchanan had just received a new gold badge which he had ordered, when he learned of the jury's action.

"Well, I guess I won't get a chance to wear it, after all," he said ruefully.

Mayor McLaughlin went to the city jail soon after the seven men had been indicted. He found several of the accused officers present.

"I want you boys to take off your badges and your guns," he said. "You can't have need for them any more."

MEMORANDUM FOR INSPECTOR E. J. CONNELLEY:

Re: Brekid.

There are attached hereto the logs for January 6, 1937 covering the taps on telephones listed to the Chief of Police, City Jailor, and Mayor's Office, all located in the City Hall at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

On this date the Garland ~~Grand Jury~~ County Grand Jury who had been probing the John Dickson case returned seven indictments charging the following named individuals with second degree murder in connection with the death of young Dickson:

Captain L. A. (Arch) Cooper
Captain R. L. (Bob) Moore
Lieutenant Cecil Brock
Detective Glynn Buchanan
Patr. Ivan Press Griffin
Patrolman Joe Scott
Patrolman Andy Irwin

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
JAN 12 1937
U. S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
OUT TO:	FILE

Note that call at 5:01 A.M. between Officer Press Griffin and Bill Hart who claims to be employed at the Belvedere Club.

Refer to that call at 10:35 A.M. between Walter Ebel, newspaper reporter and "Dutch" Akers. Subsequent telephone conversations indicates that Joe Denton never was paroled from the penitentiary, and that he is still incarcerated at the State Farm at Cummins, Arkansas.

Note that conversation at 7:55 P.M. between Cecil Brock and his wife wherein Brock stated that the action of the Grand Jury is the result of a political argument in Hot Springs, and that there isn't anything to worry about.

Note that Officer Ben Rogers is the new Night Captain of Police.

Note that conversation between Grace Goldstein and a man believed to be Jack McJunkin, a city fireman, at 11:40 P.M. The "old Man" referred to in this conversation undoubtedly is Chief Wakelin. Jack McJunkin usually chauffeur for Mayor McLaughlin, and agent recently heard that he is employed as a doorman at the Belvedere Club.

Note that call over the Mayor's telephone between Joe Wakelin and Judge Ledgerwood at 9:02 P.M. wherein Ledgerwood "fixed" it so that Wakelin wouldn't have to appear before the Garland County Grand Jury that probed the John Dickson case

Note that call at 10:22 A.M. over the Mayor's telephone between one Tucker and Mayor McLaughlin, and note in what connection the name of Jacobs is mentioned. It is not believed that this Tucker is identical with the Frank Tucker who is the City Jailor.

The call made at 10:52 A.M. indicates that the Mayor is contemplating on purchasing $4,500 worth of 4% bonds, probably as his own investment.

It might be well to set out the conversation between Mayor McLaughlin and Judge Ledgerwood which they had at 3:35 P.M. The person named Higgins in this conversation, undoubtedly is the same individual with whom Mayor McLaughlin talked at 10:52 A.M. relative to purchasing some bonds, as above indicated.

Respectfully submitted,

John L. Madala,
Special Agent.

GRAND JURORS NEAR END OF DICKSON PROBE

Final Report Expected To Be Filed
Today

QUESTION MAYOR

Wakelin Unable To Appear Before
Group

1/6/37

Entering its third day of investigation into the ill-timed death of John Dickson, city jail prisoners, the Garland county grand jury had examined some 35 witnesses by the time it adjourned for lunch today. Several other witnesses remained to be questioned this afternoon.

Officials indicated, however, that a decision upon the case would be reached by late this afternoon.

Several city policemen were included among the witnesses examined this morning, while Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin was summoned yesterday afternoon.

Three of the four officers under temporary suspension pending the outcome of the grand jury probe testified yesterday, but the fourth, Chief of Police Joe Wakelin, has been confined to his bed since Sunday by illness. Charles Goslee, foreman of the grand jury, indicated today that the chief would not be called because of his condition. The police chief, a physician declared has never fully recovered from the effects of injuries suffered when he was attacked in a Perry county raid several months ago. John Dickson was reported to have declared after his arrest that it was Alfred "Pug" Dickson, his cousin, who attacked Wakelin. "Pug" is in custody.

Members of the grand jury have been reported as expressing determination to complete the probe of the Dickson case before taking up any other cases. Investigation into the "torch death" of Mrs. Mary Cleo Grover and a few other matters are also scheduled to be taken up at this session of the court. E. E. Grover, estranged husband of Mrs. Grover, is being held without bond pending a review of his case by the grand jury. Police charged he set fire to the bed upon which his wife slept.

Ledgerwood: Is that so?

Mayor: Looks like everybody is involved but Joe, Dutch, and Robbins - He said that in their report they are going to commend me for my cooperation in the matter.

Ledgerwood: What did he say about Joe -

Mayor: The only criticism they had about Joe is that he was too late - that he let Arch Cooper & Cecil run that police department.

Ledgerwood: Well, they did in a way.

Mayor: Higgins was telling me that Bill uncovered something this morning that will involve the rest of them.

Ledgerwood: Yeah.

Mayor: He also asked me if Joe was in ill-health. I told him that he's been sick for the past year, and that the recent assault upon him aggravated his condition considerably. I left with him the impression that a sick man couldn't fulfill his duties as efficiently as otherwise, + that that probably was the cause for his being so lax with the men. I think it went over all right.

Ledgerwood: Are they going to return any indictments?

Mayor: Oh yes - they said they would indict the principals for manslaughter + the others as accessories. They even got Red Terry + Joe Scott mixed up in it.

Ledgerwood: Aw, that's a shame.

Mayor: Well, that can't be helped. Of course, if they recommend anything, I will have to follow it out.

Mayor: Reed talked to me somewhat about this you know he kept me fronting for Joe all the time.

Ledgewood: Yeah, I know.

Mayor: He is a friend, but kind of an alarmist. He seems to think we won't get away with this - that there will be plenty of adverse publicity.

Ledgewood: Well, some people will bound to set up a holler - no matter what one does, there will always be people knocking him.

Mayor: Yes, that's human nature all right guess I'll just sit back and wait.

MEMORANDUM FOR INSPECTOR E. J. CONNELLEY

Re: Brekid.

There are attached hereto the logs for January 5, 1937 covering the taps on telephones listed to the Chief of Police, City Jailor, and Mayor's Office, all located in the City Hall at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Today is the second day that the Garland County Grand Jury probing the death of John Dickson was in session. They had not, as yet, finished their investigation.

Note that call at 11:45 A.M. between "Dutch" Akers and Dawsey Reynolds. It indicates that Akers probably has considerable influence with W. S. Jacobs, owner of the Belvedere Club and several gambling places in town.

The automobile mentioned in the conversation between Cecil Brock and his wife at 12:24 P.M. probably is the same car that is referred to in the conversation at 9:26 A.M. between "Dutch" Akers and Judge Ledgerwood. As the writer recalls it, this automobile was stolen in Hot Springs several months ago, was recovered here four weeks ago, and was owned by a man living in Memphis, Tennessee. The insurance company had made a settlement on the car.

Note that conversation at 2:35 P.M. between "Dutch" Akers and Emmett Jackson, the City Clerk. It was learned that Akers traded in his Chevrolet Coach on a 1937 Buick Sedan. It is not known whether the $600.00 mentioned in instant conversation is a loan or a debt owing to Akers.

Respectfully submitted,
John L. Madala,
Special Agent.

OFFICERS ARE QUESTIONED IN DICKSON CASE

Three Suspended Po- licemen Are Heard

TEN EXAMINED

Grand Jury Expected To End Probe by Tomorrow 1/5/37

Ten more witnesses appeared before the Garland county grand jury this morning as it resumed its investigation into the alleged "third degree" death last Christmas Eve of John Dickson, city jail prisoner, and officials indicated it might be late this afternoon or tomorrow before a decision is reached.

Included among the witnesses questioned this morning were Captain L. A. Cooper, Lieut. Cecil Brock and Detective Glynn Buchanan, three of the four officers suspended by Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin pending the outcome of the investigation. Chief of Police Joe Wakelin, also under temporary suspension, was reported ill at his home this morning, but was expected to appear before the grand jury this afternoon.

Examination of the witnesses this morning brought to 22 the number already questioned and several more were scheduled to be called.

Charles Goslee, foreman of the grand jury, declared this morning that the inquisitorial body is questioning all persons having any information bearing upon the case and reiterated a recent request that any person having additional information come before the grand jury and testify.

Adjourning at noon, the grand jury was to meet again this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock to resume its probe.

James Dickson, of Hollis, father of the deceased prisoner, charged mistreatment at the hands of city policemen was responsible for his son's death. An autopsy and the grand jury probe followed. The young Dickson was arrested in Hempstead county in connection with a safe robbery here and an attack upon Chief Wakelin in a Perry county raid.

The grand jury was also expected to take up the investigation of the alleged "torch murder" of Mrs. Mary Cleo Grover, whose husband, E. E. Grover, is charged with setting fire to the bed in which she slept. Grover has denied the charges.

PAROLE FOLLOWS FURLOUGH FOR GARLAND CONVICT

Cummins Prison Farm, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Prison Supt. Tom Cogbill said today that only one of the 144 prisoners released on short furloughs for the Christmas holidays was unaccounted for.

He said "Humpy" Brown, serving a five-year term for burglary from Lincoln County, had failed to return to the stockades but asserted he expected Brown back soon.

Another of the convicts granted clemency was picked up by Pine Bluff officers last night and held for prison authorities. He is Fletcher Hodge, 35, serving a long term for murder from Mississippi county.

The four prisoners from Garland county receiving the benefit of Gov. Futrell's Christmas furlough were back at the state farm today with the exception of one Negro, George Hightower, who with five other Garland convicts, was granted a parole by the state penal board yesterday.

The other three from this vicinity will continue to serve out their terms. Lee Wacaster serving his second term for murder, was sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of Miss Mianie Shepherd five years ago. Previous to that he had served several years for the murder of his brother-in-law, Tillman Brown.

Walter Nelson, tried five years ago for the murder of D. Downs, was convicted of planting a "bomb" in Weaver's Novelty Shop and causing the explosion in which Downs was killed.

Clarence Stroud, formerly of the Bayou section, is serving a life sentence for the slaying of his wife about 10 years ago.

Hightower, who received his parole yesterday, was convicted of killing a Negro girl in a Malvern avenue establishment.

Five Granted Paroles

Little Rock, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The state penal board paroled 94 convicts today, among them Charles Crosnoe of Hope, convicted arsonist.

Gov. J. M. Futrell earlier today had reduced Crosnoe's term from six to five years. Crosnoe was sentenced from Bradley county May 27, 1935, for burning a gin at Banks. The reduced sentence made him eligible for parole. The commutation order said Crosnoe is physically incapacitated and requires medical attention which cannot be given him in prison.

Although Chairman Walter Helms of Texarkana announced at the board's last meeting that he would resign today, attaches at the governor's office said they had received no resignations.

Paroles were granted to the following from Garland county: Joe Denton, statutory offense, 21 years; John Prince, grand larceny, one year; Herman Burton, receiving stolen property, one year; George Hightower, murder, ten years; and Argus Samuels, second degree murder, five years.
